At ElevenPaths we have our own way of thinking when we talk about security. Although the security industry has been in full swing for many years and we have seen all types of products and solutions introduced over the last decades, we believe that we still have not got it quite right as we continue to be confronted by many of the security threats and problems that arose in the early days.

At ElevenPaths our main objective is the creation of security products that redefine how we deal with current and future threats, as well as to enable notions such as security or privacy for all persons by default, bringing these concepts to them without interfering in their professional or private activities.
